VOLUME XLVI

Foreword

Approximately 900 assorted Little Reds are poured annually into the Triadelphia High School caldron. Of these, more than one-fourth are green ingredients; about one-half are semi-seeped with knowledge; and the remainder rise to the top when they reach the well-done stage, are skimmed from the surface, and are ladled from the kettle.

Constantly stirring the ingredients with patience, helpfulness, and discipline, the gourmets (Faculty) saturate the mixture with education and heat it slowly over a steady flame of inspiration. With a dash of textbook and laboratory spice, the essential portions are also liberally seasoned with sports, recreation, and extra-curricular activities.

Some components boil more actively than others, and some acquire more flavor. Still others seek further saturation. All, however, share common memories.

When hunger for these memories is poignant, may it be satisfied by "A TASTE OF TRIDEL" within these pages.

MRS. LOIS GRUBB

Dedication

VERTICAL ANGLES, arcs of a circle, and equilaterial triangles—terms familiar to any student of geometry—comprise but one "included side" of Tridel's esteemed plane geometry instructor, Mrs. Lois Grubb.

Synonymous with this mathematical mentor are the patience, understanding, and authority with which, in the 18 years of her teaching at Triadelphia High School, she has earned the unanimous respect and admiration of all those with whom she has come in contact. Possessing the rare ability to transform each geometrical problem into a challenge, Mrs. Grubb is able to project her personal determination and enthusiasm into her classroom. Her former students remember the superior instruction in plane geometry offered by this exceptional teacher; but they recall, too, the "something of herself" that was generously given to each one of them and the warm-hearted, yet diligent approach that characterized her tutelage.

Known for her culinary, needlework, and handicraft pursuits, Mrs. Grubb could be aptly crowned a champion of versatility. Utilizing her mathematical prowess, she designed the plans and supervised the construction of her Warwood home. Before she limited her fields of instruction to plane geometry, the subjects she taught ranged from physics, American history, and English to algebra and trigonometry.

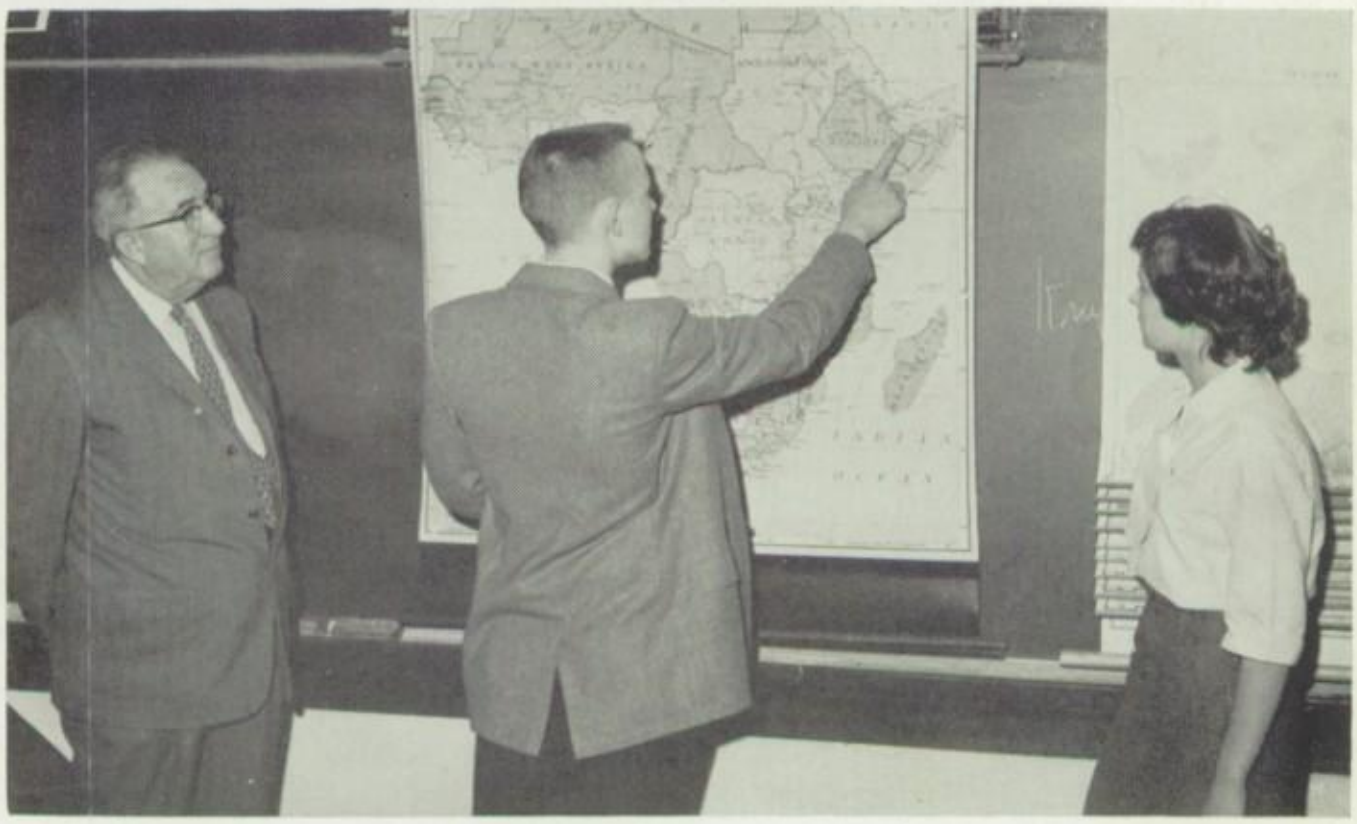
As a former faculty adviser to "The Triad" staff and the Student Council, Mrs. Grubb stands ever ready to extend a helping hand or a sympathetic ear to a Little Red in need of advice or friendship.

In appreciation of the knowledge and inspiration that she has bestowed on the students of Triadelphia High School and as a token of admiration for one who truly exemplifies the pinnacle of an ideal teacher, the staff of "The 1960 Triad" dedicates Volume XLVI to Tridel's one and only Mrs. Grubb.

Mrs. Grubb discusses plane geometry procedures with Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Haake at Tridel's thirteenth annual Open House.

Food for Thought

Nuclear energy, atomic weapons, electronics, and guided missiles are important terms in the modern world, increasing the necessity of scholastic science courses. In Mrs. Hoffer's physics class, Ronnie Peyton and Nancy Lou Nesbitt experiment with a tesla coil that they hope will light Geissler tubes.



African "trouble spots" have for some time kept the rest of the world alert to each new development. As Mr. Bixler's world history class studies the background of that continent, Larry Walton points out one of these in-the-news areas to Charolette Watenpool.

Comprehensive, modern preparation for college includes more than a background in liberal arts. Janie Bonnesen and Lynn Holmes acquire practical experience in the operation of a mimeograph as part of their personal-typing training in the class taught by Mrs. Martin.

Heads of "Let us . . ."

From America's first colonization up to the present day, patriotism has shown evidence of being a major force in holding the country together. Mr. Kraus observes Virginia Smith as she delivers a required patriotic speech. Somewhat impatiently, Sam Lantz awaits his turn.

Sharon,
Remember
T. H. S these past four years. I hope you have much success and happiness
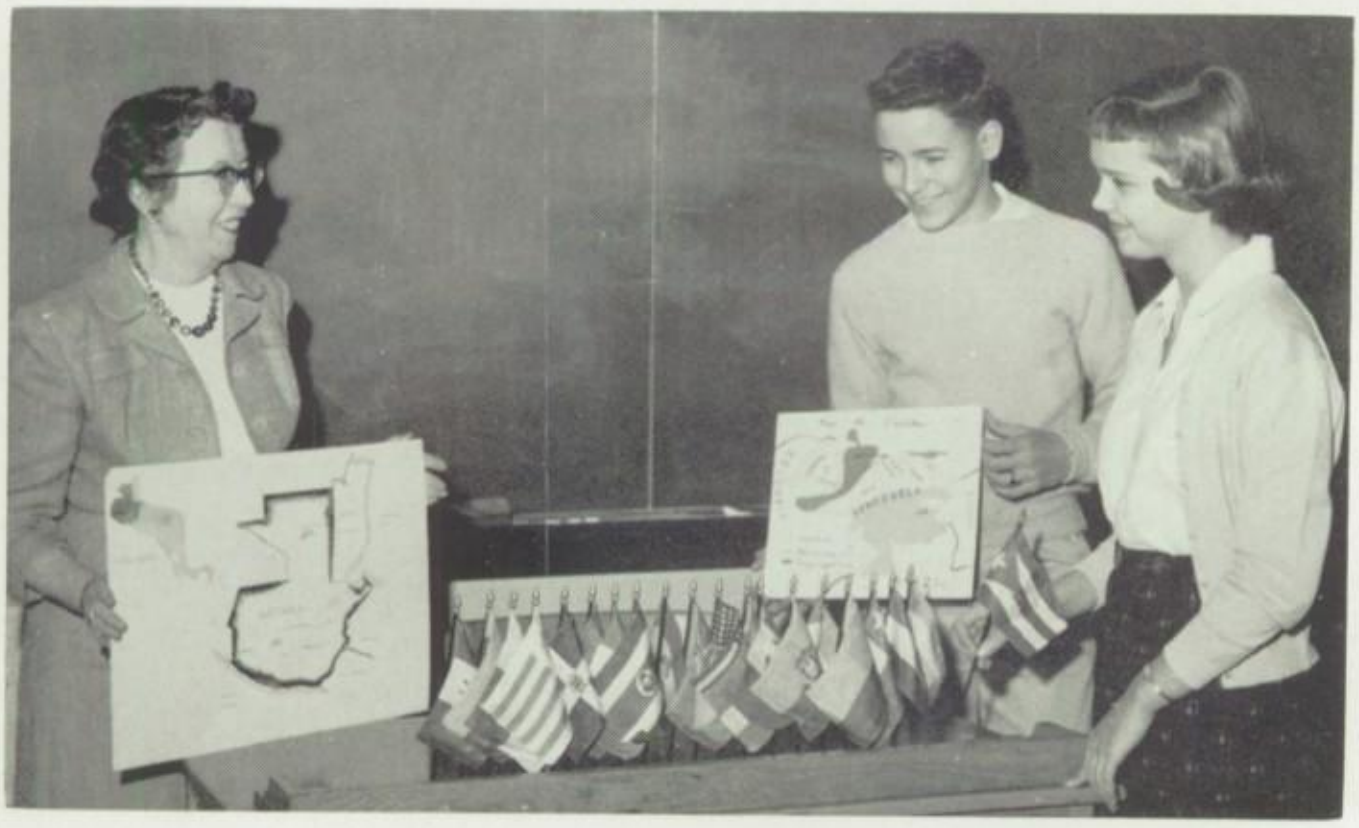
in the future.
Linda

Emphasis on audio-visual aids has proved its increasing importance in modern educational programs. Miss Erskine and two of her English IV students, Mary Frances Kayuha and Linda Hamilton, listen to a recording of "Macbeth" which adds Broadway realism to their Shakespearean study.

Illustrating the acceptance of recreation as a vital part of a student's curriculum, Tridel's athletic program provides necessary diversion from scholastic pursuits. In a girls' gym class, Miss Stewart describes to Claire Clarke and Sharon Maury the proper procedure in mounting a "horse."

Tough Stake

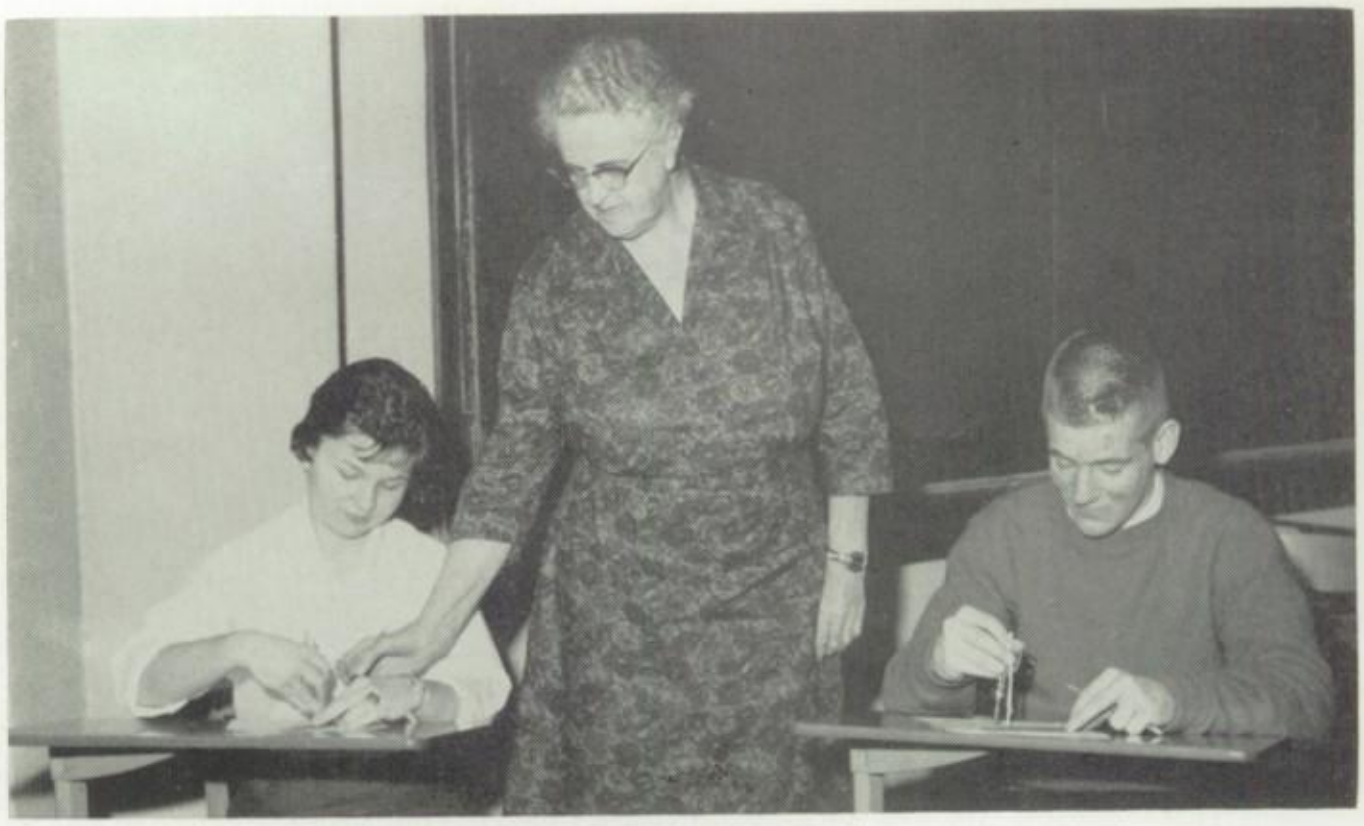
While Don Vandling employs T-square and ruler to draw a blueprint, his work is being carefully scrutinized by Frank Hembert, classmate, and Mr. Butcher, mechanical - drawing instructor. These Little Reds may well be dreaming of applying this training to future architectural triumphs.



With the United Nations striving to maintain world peace, educators help students understand its functions and the nations it represents. With maps and flags, Miss Moore shows Spanish I students, John O'Shields and Lynn Gayheart, the scope of that language in Latin-American countries.

As vocation or recreation, appreciation of music is often traced to its study and practical application in school curricula. Hobbyists and careerists number among Tridel's marching and concert band members, two of whom, Richard McAdams and Judy Robinson, practice instrumentation with their maestro, Mr. Ashkine.

Scholastic Stuffing



Computing an income tax return, balancing a household budget, and keeping accounts are but three adult occupations that demand a working knowledge of mathematics. Mrs. Grubb watches two of her plane geometry students, Becky Wilson and Jim Seibert, employ their compasses.

Today's in-training seamstresses prepare to be tomorrow's well-dressed women, careerists in the home economics field, or expert housewives. With Mrs. Steele's friendly guidance, Dixie Neuhard enjoys becoming familiar with techniques of the sewing machine, and Carol Downs heeds the instruction.

While Khrushchev visited this country and President Eisenhower toured abroad, Triads kept informed on these and other pertinent happenings. In Mr. Shinsky's social science class, Sharon Joseph and Anne Mary McDonie, freshmen, distribute copies of "Every Week," a current events study paper.

Board of Education Maintains Standards of County Schools

For physical supervision and the maintenance of quality standards in its curriculum, Triadelphia High School is dependent on the five members of the Ohio County Board of Education.

Assisted by the three Ohio County school superintendents, this elected governing body of the school system meets regularly to budget and distribute educational funds, formulate policy, arrange bus transportation for students, hire teachers, and organize upkeep and improvements of all public elementary and secondary schools in Ohio County. Textbooks, supplies, and equipment for class instruction are also provided by the Board.

Meetings of this non-partisan unit are held in the Board of Education Building, 2103 Chapline Street, Wheeling, the third Thursday of every month. President John H. Clark heads the group, and J. P. McHenry serves as secretary. To this dedicated and efficient body every Little Red owes gratitude for a large part of his school-hour welfare.

As Principal W. J. Farmer watches, Miss Adda L. Dunlap places a floral centerpiece on the refreshment table at Tridel's thirteenth annual Open House, Nov. 10, 1959.

Miss Mary B. Winters, Tridel's advanced mathematical mentor, records grades in her "black book."

Seniors Review Four Years Beneath Tridel's Portals

In September, 1956, the Oak Park Annex bulged with its annual influx of slightly bewildered, but eager freshmen. Before that year terminated, the newcomers were versed in social science, claimed "Ivanhoe" and "The Lady of the Lake" as new acquaintances, and elected their first Student Council representatives and class officers.

New friends of the 1957-1958 season included "Julius Caesar" and protozoans. Moving into the Main Building, the sophomores gladly relegated "bird's-eye"-view assembly seats to their successors. With other Little Reds they observed the Triads' "perfect" season of 10 straight football losses.

As eleventh graders, the Class of 1960 survived the hula-hoop craze, helped to hang a Wheeling High football player in effigy, and shared "The Vision of Sir Launfal." Class rings and the first Junior-Senior Prom were highlights of the year.

Tridel's final year for the 1960 graduates was crammed with participation in Mountaineer Day, College-Entrance Examinations, the Senior Play, and career plans. While six seniors advanced to the rating of Finalists in National Merit Competition and one twelfth grader earned an honorary science award, many other members of this class headed student organizations. Commencement Day brought common gratitude for four years of learning and experience—and a wealth of memories.

Casting their vote into a typical Japanese pagoda, John O'Shields and Donna Virginia Schrader, freshmen, make their choice for queen of the annual festivities.

In Memoriam

CARL ROBERT FALCK
January 31, 1944
August 12, 1959

SOME TIME AT EVE

By Lizzie Clark Hardy

Some time at eve when the tide is low,
I shall slip my mooring and sail away,
With no response to the friendly hail
Of kindred craft in the busy bay.
In the silent hush of the twilight pale,
When the night stoops down to embrace the day,
And the voices call to the waters' flow—
Some time at eve when the tide is low,
I shall slip my mooring and sail away.

Carl Robert Falck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl O. Falck, died August 12, 1959, after being struck in the chest by a baseball during a Pony-League game. Known to classmates and friends as Bob, this fellow student possessed a kind, sincere personality and displayed a quiet, pleasing manner. Fair-haired and blue-eyed, this late Triad would have been graduated with the Class of 1961.

Junior Class Pursues 'Elevated' Regions of Study

Towering over Triadelphia High School from their elevated third-floor domain, members of the junior class happily exchanged grasshoppers, congruent triangles, and Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," along with Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities" for anions, dihedral angles, Poe's "The Raven," and Wilder's "Our Town."

Between visions of the sign of superiority—the cap and gown—Little Red eleventh graders began their preparation by choosing and receiving their prized class rings. In conjunction with the American history course, they selected two of their members to make the journey to Charleston for the annual "Know Your State Government Day."

As the third-year students eyed with envy the twelfth-grade center section and looked forward to the Junior-Senior Prom, they discovered that "filling the shoes" of the seniors would demand their best effort. College aspirants took numerous tests, and all planned for days to come with renewed energy and vigor.

Sophomores Battle 'Bugs,' Brutus in Tenth-Grade Course

Leaving their protective "shelf" for the supremacy of the ground floor, the sophomore class descended for a busy year of dissecting insects, learning the bones of the body, and proving theorems.

Soon acquiring a taste for literature, these second-year Oak Parkers whisked from the land of patricians and plebeians of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" to the glorious days of the French Revolution in Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities." Many gleaned more knowledge of Caesar's campaigns from his "Commentaries of the Gallic War."

Enthusiastic about becoming members of the clubs now open to them, the tenth graders donned everything from togas to swim caps to fulfill initiation requirements. When membership was gained, they rapidly became active in club programs and projects.

Showing eager interest in Tridel's athletic program, the sophomores captured places on pigskin and cage squads. Competing in inter-school contests for the first time, the tenth-grade girls also boasted a large representation on GAA teams.

First - Year Fledglings Adjust to Little Red Life

After recovering from their initial "small-frogs-in-a-large-puddle" feeling, Tridel's plebes soon adjusted to the pattern of the Little Red domain. As part of their first-year activities, the fledgling Triads debated current affairs described in "Every Week" papers, thrilled to their introduction of Sir Walter Scott's "The Lady of the Lake," and took many a "tumble" on gymnasium mats.

Familiarizing themselves with routines concentrated under the roof of the Annex, the freshmen quickly learned that "life begins with the bell." As they viewed assemblies from "Peanut Heaven," the newcomers covetously eyed the upperclassmen and longed for the day when they, too, would watch performances at eye level.

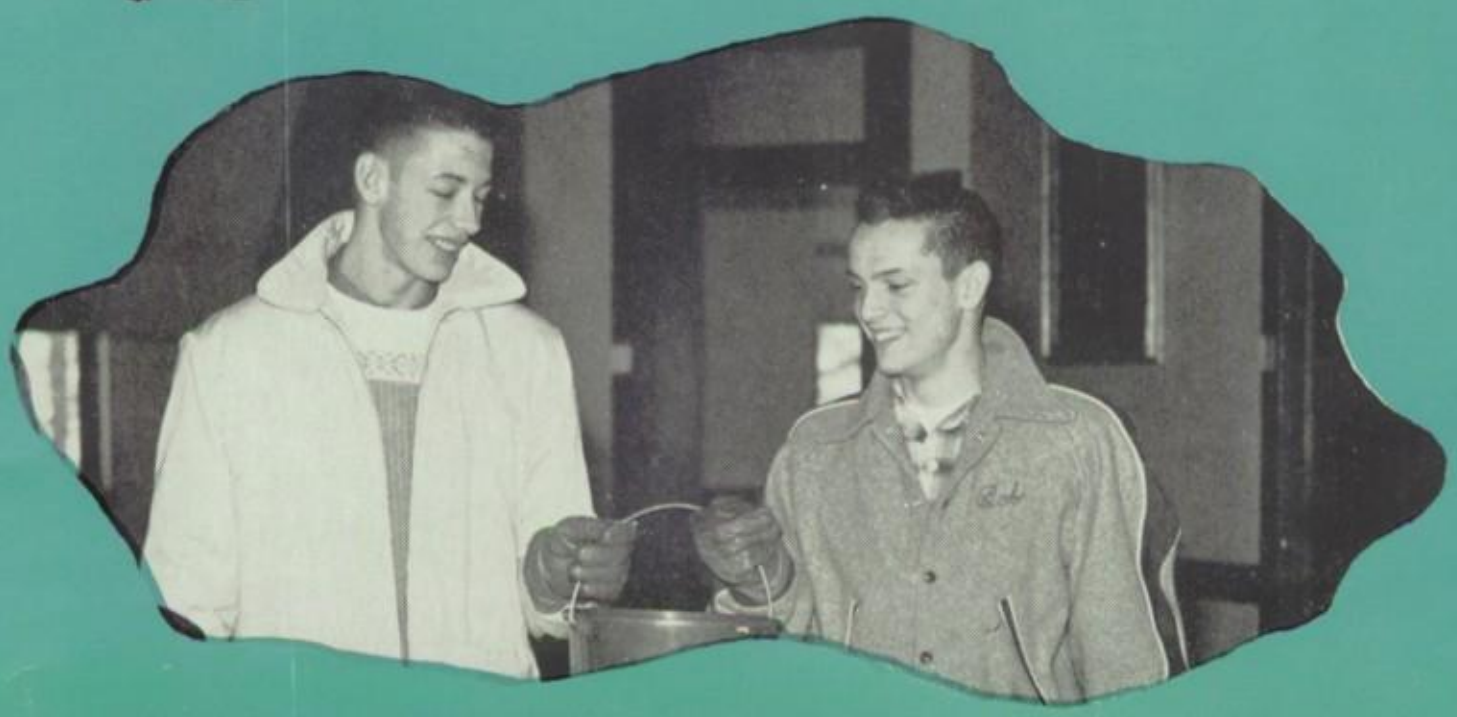
At Freshman Promotion, the ninth-graders were elevated to permanent residence in "Old Main." Eager to depart from "freshman paradise," they cheerfully left it to their successors but retained nostalgic memories of their maiden voyage into high-school life.

Juniors Barbara Gross, Dianne Allen, and Rebecca Klabano, garbed in can-can costumes straight from "Gay Paree," complete initiation requirements for Tridel's French Club.

Diana Heusel masquerades as a backwoods West Virginian during last fall's senior "Mountaineer Day."

Special Dishes

Arthur Jones and Bob Strauch, members of the Hi-Y's "Bucket Brigade," collect money for the Salvation Army's yearly Christmas Drive.



Judy Meier and Jeff Miles, Student Council representatives, guide Mr. and Mrs. Johnson B. McKinley to a classroom at the annual Open House.

Comprised of three officers and elected representatives from each class, Triadelphia's Student Council rendered numerous services to the school. Leadership of this legislative body was initiated by its members' serving as hosts to parents at the thirteenth annual Open House.

Co-sponsored by Miss Elizabeth Anne Meek and Glenn R. Schreiber, this organization sold Triad book covers, sponsored noon dancing, conducted a disc-jockey contest, fostered student participation in the Purdue University Opinion Panel, and assisted with junior high Orientation Day. During portions of the term, official representatives were stationed in the halls at noon to aid in regulating traffic. Six students of the month and one student of the year were honored by the council.

Among social activities promoted by the Triad governing body were a semi-formal dance in Oglebay's Pine Room, "Twirp Week," and the annual banquet. Three delegates attended the state Student Council convention in October at Jackson's Mill.

Donning serapes, sombreros, decorative skirts, frilled blouses, mantillas, and an abundance of costume jewelry, new recruits were inducted into the Spanish Club in February. Senoritas and senores who attained "A" averages in first-semester Spanish, "C" averages and above during the first six weeks of Spanish II, or students who had completed two years of Spanish were eligible.

Monthly meetings, sponsored by Miss Margaret Moore, were held Thursdays; the presiding officers were Marlene Guelker, president; Elizabeth Ann Fischer, vice-president; and Nancy Roth, secretary-treasurer.

Tales of an adventuresome journey to Mexico and Guatemala by Miss Sarah F. White, the school librarian, were one of the many highlights enjoyed throughout the year. Also on the agenda were a book review by Sharon Dean, a Christmas party with carols being sung in Spanish, plus a talk on a tour of Spain by Ernest H. Polack, a student teacher from Bethany College.

Douglas Nern and Ann Eichelkraut, freshman Spanish Club initiates, inspect Miss Margaret Moore's authentic examples of Spanish craftsmanship.

Classical Club Affiliates Travel 'Road to Rome'

Under the supervision of Linda Winesdorfer, Classical Club member, Brent Diefenbach and Charlene Coleman clean Caesar's statue as part of their initiation.

Making the mystical conversion from the modern world to the ancient realm of "The Eternal City," 82 would-be Romans traveled the roads of antiquity the fourth Tuesday of every month, advised by Miss Audrey Lazear, and led by President Joan Bailey.

Those seeking membership in the order of Latin Linquists had to meet the required "A" or "B" average. Then, attired in the characterizing white sheet, they carried candy for the sweet tooth of each old member who knew the password. These toga-clad initiates scoured the busts of Virgil, Cicero, and Caesar while the members played games of Latin origin.

Other programs for the year consisted of slides of famous Roman paintings; "Gossip," Latin style; and Linda Winesdorfer's book review of Homer's "Odyssey." To conclude the year of classical array, Classical Club members donned their white sheets and attended a banquet a la Roman, where the 1960-1961 officers were installed.

Linguistic 'Know-How' Furthered by Fluent French Club

Furthering the linguistic aspect of club life at Triadelphia, the French Club is an activity in which students may show off their "savoir-faire" in French, "the language of lovers." Under the expert guidance of its adviser, Miss Elinor Nally, the group was headed this year by President Susan McCormick.

At the initiation ceremony each new member masqueraded as a can-can dancer and wore a sign inscribed with a French proverb and its English translation. French pastry was served at the Christmas party.

Meetings were held the second Tuesday of every month and were made more interesting by movies of Paris, speakers, and discussions. To augment its coffers, "Les eleves du francais" arranged a bake sale. Open to first-year French students with a "B" average or more, and second-year students of French with a minimum "C" average, the club had 42 members this year.

Dorothy Junkins points out a province on a unique map of France to Margaret Hile and Mary Ann Yates, French Club members.

'Milkmaids' Sell 'Dairy Best' to Thirsty Triads

"Such as have need of milk . . ." Hebrews V, 12

Milk Salesmen, Tridel's newest aggregation supervised and aided by Mrs. Catherine Ebert Shields, tried diligently to fulfill the needs of milk-loving Little Reds.

Participants were students in Mrs. Shields' Clerical Office Practice class, and portions of the daily instructional period were reserved for incidental, but necessary, confabs.

Each of the 27 distributors solicited orders for milk in an assigned homeroom from 8:30 until 9 and delivered the beverage at noon, standing patiently outside doorways until the bell rang. Another project undertaken by this group was the sale of candy at lunch time, also a welcomed Oak Park offering for sweet-toothed Little Reds.

During the first four months of the sale of milk, 11,821 bottles were purchased. Throughout the 1959-1960 term more than 20,000 half-pint bottles were dispensed.

Although the most recently formed student activity at Triadelphia, the Milk Salesmen fulfilled a long-felt need of a majority of Oak Parkers who ate lunch in their respective homerooms.

Jay Nesbitt and Phillip Rea purchase milk from Betty Minter, a member of the newly formed organization in charge of noon distribution.

Linda Jean Strothman, Bonnie Bell, Jeff Boerger, and Bill Woods enact a skit prepared for a meeting of the Masquers.

Under the experienced tutelage of Miss Mary A. Erskine, Tridel's two theatrical groups, the Masquers and the Thespians, endeavored to follow the adage, "Act well your part."

Entitled "A By-Line for St. Luke," a one-act play was the initial dramatic presentation. Because the theme pertained to Christmas, this script was chosen for a pre-holiday assembly.

Members appeared Feb. 12 in "Abraham Lincoln's Whiskers." Later, in the spring, the Thespians performed in a mystery drama, "Which Is the Way to Boston?"

When not rehearsing roles, both Masquers and Thespians studied theatrical techniques. Make-up, props, and stage terms were included in their comprehensive training.

Limiting its membership to 30, the Masquers met twice each month. After completion of 100 hours of services, they were eligible to join Thespians, a national dramatic organization. While tryouts for Masquers were held in the fall, new Thespians were inducted in the spring.

Journalistic Learners Strive to Become By-Line Earners

Samuel Bruskin, Nancy Woodruff, and Chris Smith, first-year journalists, use the mat service to illustrate an ad for The Triadelphian.

To write copy worthy of publication in The Triadelphian or "The Triad," to warrant a by-line, or to earn a coveted staff position were the ambitions that guided each first-year journalist. Supervised by Robert H. Porter, adviser, and aided by veteran staff members, the fledgling Fourth Estaters solicited advertising during the fall.

Progressing from summaries of football games to headline writing, "daffynition" composition, and editorial efforts, the novice journalists also gained experience in preparing original advertising copy, page make-up, and proofreading. For the final examination, each member of the class composed an editorial page for any given issue of The Triadelphian.

As cub reporters, the group was trained to an alert observation of newsworthy school activities and feature material. In assisting the publications staffs, the journalists became familiar with the stress of exactness and perfection and the countless hours of meticulous preparation behind each issue of the paper and volume of the yearbook.

Leila Rosen and Barbara Rubinstein consult the card catalog in the library to find vital reference material for their Junior Town Meeting speeches.

"Should the United States recognize Communist China?"

Under the sponsorship of Miss Mary A. Erskine and J. W. Cochran, speakers for Junior Town Meeting of the Air skillfully debated this vital issue.

Leila Rosen and Richard Hayes supported the affirmative side; Sandra Reiter and Stephen Brooks argued the negative. Alternates were Gloria Gwynne and Barbara Rubinstein.

Junior Town Meeting was presented before the student body in a special Oct. 29, 1959 assembly. Dr. Chandler Shaw, Bethany College, served as moderator of the symposium. Following their deliveries, panelists were questioned by several members of the audience. Taping the entire program, Radio Station WWVA broadcast it the following Saturday.

For the first time in 14 years, a $1200 scholarship to Bethany College was given to the most outstanding speaker of the 30 participating schools.

National Honor Society members of the Oak Park Chapter strived to prove themselves worthy of the highest scholastic recognition secondary schools can bestow upon students. Outstanding scholarship, character, leadership, and service were the essential qualities that constituted the basis for membership.

Miss Adda L. Dunlap and J. W. Cochran, whose capable and willing assistance proved invaluable, co-sponsored this group. Membership in this honorary organization was limited to 15 per cent of the senior class and to 5 per cent of the junior section.

Among its numerous service projects, designed to benefit the Oak Park student body, this merited group included such activities as maintaining the inspirational "Thought-for-the-Week" bulletin boards in both the girls' and boys' study halls, posting typed schedules on each classroom door, and selling football tags to boost gridiron support. Climaxing the year's activities was the April 8 induction ceremony, when more Little Reds were received into coveted membership.

Scientific Searchers Study Varied Fields of Knowledge

Miss Sarah F. White, librarian, inspects one of the magazines presented by the Science Club, represented by Stephen Brooks, David Seamon, and Jane Elbert.

Delving into the mysterious realms of science, 42 industrious Triads participated in tests and experiments with the aid of their sponsor, A. R. Milligan. These microbe probers were members of the Science Club, an organization offering juniors and seniors the opportunity to further their education in that field.

Meeting bi-monthly, club members were assisted in their quest for knowledge by visual aids and by a series of student-performed demonstrations. Triads maintaining an average of "B" or better in chemistry or physics were eligible for membership.

Dues helped keep the library stocked with scientific magazines, and for the first time, annual assessments were also used to finance admission into the West Virginia Junior Academy of Science. Of its programs, the highlight was a Feb. 6 field trip to a Steubenville steel plant where each Little Red observed the intricate processes of steel making and molding.

"Buried Treasure!" agree Tolly Grimes, Sally Hathaway, and Marianne Jefferson, inspecting the heart and dollar bill found in a cake at the Valentine Bake Sale.

Under the capable guidance of J. C. Bullard, biology instructor, Tridel's Nature Club embarked on a profitable and educational year. As one of their many useful projects, members of this worthwhile organization undertook beautification of the school grounds by planting shrubbery.

Astronomical wonders delighted Little Red naturalists on their trip to the Buhl Planetarium in Pittsburgh. Constellations, comets, meteors, and telescopic equipment were viewed with reference to the possibilities of the space age. Two bake sales of varied confectionery delights prepared by club members provided funds for these undertakings.

Any sophomore, junior, or senior with an average of "B" was eligible to join this group after submitting a satisfactory essay on "Why I Want to Join the Nature Club." Entries were judged by veteran nature lovers for thought and originality.

At meetings held the first Monday of each month, club programs featured speeches on pertinent topics and a visit to a local greenhouse.

Giving their time to aid Little Red borrowers, members of the Library Club rendered valuable assistance to Miss Sarah F. White, librarian and club sponsor. "B" averages and endorsements of two teachers were required for membership.

Besides shelving and checking out books, these competent helpers mastered the art of "do-it-yourself" bookbinding and shellacking new volumes. Sending overdue notices to forgetful Triads and straightening periodicals were also included in each member's duties.

Well informed on the location of almost any of the library's sources of information, the girls assisted perplexed researchers seeking material for reports or projects. They introduced many students to the card catalog and Reader's Guide, and explained their uses. Obtaining desired magazine articles for Oak Parkers was still another duty of these skilled volunteers.

These assistant librarians met the fourth Thursday of each month for regular meetings. Often, the time was spent on additional library chores.

Concluding the year, they elected officers for the next school season.

'Light of Learning' Guides Group of Future Instructors

Francine Compagnone pins a carnation on C. C. Kraus while Miss Ellen W. Stewart receives a corsage from Sandra Emerson in observance of American Education Week.

Taking a peek into the crystal ball of the future, the members of Triadelphia's P. E. King Chapter of the Future Teachers of America acquired knowledge of the trials and tribulations of their prospective vocations in the many phases of education.

Affiliated with both the State and National Education Associations, the club obtained its charter seven years ago. Mrs. Margaret Dobbs was again the group's sponsor, and this year Karen Ridgway served as president.

Activities included a bake sale, a day of practice teaching at local grade schools, and a Christmas banquet in Wilson Lodge. Programs consisted of two guest speakers, Captain David Judy from Linsly Military Institute and Mrs. Freda Y. Conaway from West Liberty State College. Also on the agenda were a tour through the recently completed City-County Building, slides of the Middle East and Africa, and installation of officers for 1960-1961.

United by a common aspiration for a vocation as a nurse, medical technician, laboratory worker, or physician, more than 50 Little Reds who comprised the Future Medical Careers Club met once each month. As their main project for the year, these medically minded Triads made an informative tour of the new medical center at West Virginia University.

Sponsored by Miss Phyllis A. Beneke, the FMC featured a guest speaker at each meeting. In February, a physiotherapist from the Ohio Valley General Hospital described his profession. That month, too, the Women's Auxiliary to the Ohio County Medical Society donated Future Medical Careers pins to the Oak Park group. To finance its activities, the Tridel FMC'ers held a sale of home-baked delicacies before Christmas.

Membership was open to those students who submitted satisfactory essays concerning their reasons for wishing to join the organization.

Amy Quinn, Constance Sargent, and Andrea Niehaus coordinate plans for a trip to the Medical Center at West Virginia University, which highlighted the FMC's year.

Painters Perfect Proficiency by Publicizing Projects

Preparing to paint a football sign, Carolin Chapline, Nancy Roth, and Carolyn Rider, Art Club members, mix desired hues.

Guided by Anthony Peck, the Art Club lent priceless assistance to other student organizations in the publicizing of their numerous and varied activities. These Little Red dabblers also displayed their artistry and versatility in creating scenery for dramatic presentations and football posters.

All 30 members, proficient with brush, assembled the second Friday of each month in Tridel's Art Room.

In February, 12 Triad designers took part in the second annual city-wide decorating project sponsored by Stone & Thomas. Working in groups of two, these enterprising young artists trimmed showcases in keeping with St. Valentine's Day.

Students desiring to join the club were required to submit samples of their talent to veteran members whose vote determined admission. Applicants whose work met requirements participated in the traditional initiation by coming to school on the appointed day attired as Indians. They also appeared in that same garb at the Triadelphia-Wheeling pigskin encounter that night.

Little Red 'Horse Lovers' Depict 'Mounting' Interest

In Western habit or English, Lynne Baker and Sherry Armbrecht anticipate equal pleasure in the horseback ride they will soon take.

Astride spirited mounts rented from the Oglebay Park Riding Academy, the venturesome equestriennes of Tridel's Riding Club cantered regularly along the Park's bridle trails and paths. Headed by President Judy Youngman, the organization was sponsored by Miss Mabel Scherich.

Any girl who wished to become a part of the group of "horse lovers" displayed her proficiency in walking, trotting, and cantering her steed around a track and exhibited mounting and dismounting techniques. Once in the club, a member was expected to participate each semester in a minimum of three rides that were held whenever the weather permitted.

At their meetings the first and third Tuesday of each month, the horsewomen planned a bake sale that was held in February, discussed business matters, and organized their rides. To conclude its year of adventuresome excursions, the organization was "back in the saddle again" for a cross-country ride and picnic.

From the annual membership drive in November, Tridel's Junior Red Cross Council collected $67.10, its contribution to the relief of the needy and underprivileged. Donations were accepted by homeroom representatives and were forwarded to the American Red Cross for use in innumerable community services.

Under the efficient sponsorship of Mrs. Catherine Ebert Shields, who was assisted by three council officers, the project "Stampede" was undertaken. Jim O. Smith '49, a WHLL announcer, originated the campaign to solicit gifts of trading stamps. These were redeemed for toys that were sent to several Ohio Valley orphanages during the Christmas season. Collecting more than 25,000 stamps, the Oak Park group presented them to the WHLL announcer and gave a prize to C. C. Kraus' sophomore homeroom for donating the most stamps.

Meetings were held whenever the council deemed them advisable; however, during specified noon hours, numerous conferences were conducted in Mrs. Shields' room.

Nancy Horne and Sharon Amend, seniors, guided by Mrs. Catherine Ebert Shields, sponsor of the Junior Red Cross, prepare cards and pins for the yearly membership drive.

"As we journey through life,
let us live by the way." — Walter Watson

Adopting the theme, "The Highway of Life," the Y-Teens enjoyed a style show, heard numerous guest speakers, held semi-formal and informal dances, and attended a movie designed to inform and entertain the members of Tridel's largest organization.

With the capable supervision and willing assistance of Miss Adda L. Dunlap and Miss Mary B. Winters, co-sponsors, the cabinet arranged 16 varied programs during the 1959-1960 school year.

"Stop, Look, Listen, and Learn!" a skit presented by the cabinet, gave all prospective Y-Teens a sneak preview of the club's scheduled events. Following this initial program, a party to entertain ninth graders was held in the gym.

Recognizing seriousness of purpose, the candle-lighted initiation ceremony accepted new members into the club. Latest fall fashions from Fifth Avenue were shown by Colvig's and modeled by club members. Displaying native dance and song, State Conference delegates, dressed in authentic costumes, demonstrated Hawaii's culture at a second program in autumn.

Miss Ruth E. Davidson, director of the Visiting Nursing Association in Wheeling, showed slides of that agency's patients and explained how the club could be of service in "Good Will Way." Following Miss Davidson's suggestions, the girls made and distributed Christmas favors when volunteer club members went caroling.

Patriotism, Brotherhood Featured at Junction of Route

"Hand motions are important," advocates Nancy Burson, showing Sue Osborne and Joyce Morris intricate hula details that she learned at the Y-Teen convention.

December's meeting, "Charm Corner" offered tips on good grooming and make-up by a representative of a local beauty salon. Y-Teens and their dates strolled along the "Pathway to the Stars," the annual Christmas semi-formal dance held in Oglebay Park's Pine Room.

To start the year with a patriotic feeling, members of the Wheeling Chapter of the DAR showed copies of every flag flown over the United States. Wintergreen Hall was the scene of this year's Valentine Dance, "Lover's Lane." Erasing religious prejudice was the idea of the movie, "An American Girl," presented during National Brotherhood Week.

'The Winding Way' Beckons Onward at Year's Close

Mrs. Mae Hughes, a member of Wheeling's City Council, acquainted Y-Teens with the numerous possibilities for women in government. Preceded by the election of officers, a spring meeting, "Boulevard of Beliefs," featured a panel of club members who discussed their various faiths.

Inspirational hymns and spirituals were presented by the Gospel Singers on "The Glory Road" in April. Corsages were presented to all graduates-to-be at the Senior Farewell, "Sunset Boulevard," the final semi-formal of the year. To culminate the year's activities, mothers were honored guests at "The Winding Way," the traditional installation tea to recognize the departing leaders and to welcome the incoming officers.

Lyle Anne Ernst hands Courtney Haake a Y-Teen program for the year while Ellen Goodwin adds an apt comment.

Seniors Ben Dwinnell and Denny Schrader anticipate the annual Thanksgiving Hi-Y Dance as they observe the reminder for the Nov. 25 event.

To serve its school and to promote high ideals, Tridel's Hi-Y consisted of 55 males who devoted their extra time to campus and community service.

Required to be a sophomore, junior, or senior and to have a minimum average of 2.5, new members were accepted after passing an examination on the purposes and history of the Hi-Y. To remain in the club, they had to continue the 2.5 average and acquire five points each semester.

Under the guidance of Anthony Peck, these boys aided civic groups by soliciting for the Salvation Army during the Christmas holidays and for the Heart Fund in February. Revenue was raised by selling YMCA candy, washing cars, operating candy machines in the cafeteria, and selling programs and refreshments at home basketball games.

Delegates from the Triad Hi-Y participated in "Youth in Government Day" during April. Headed by Senior Bob Strauch, this service group also sent representatives to the State Hi-Y Conference in November.

Skilled Seamstresses, Cooks Practice Domestic Arts

That "seasoning is the thing" is being put to practice by Joan Vercellotti and Verna Vargo, culinary aspirants, in their Home Economics curriculum.

Realizing that perfection in domestic skills is of vital importance to women engaged in varied careers, the 13 members of the Home Economics Club met the second Tuesday of each month to discuss the arts of cooking and sewing. These girls were advised and directed by Mrs. Dora Steele and Miss Geraldine J. Newman.

Demonstrations and movies dealing with the arts of homemaking were parts of the monthly meetings. Projects such as knitting sports sweaters for skiing and ice skating, embroidering, and crocheting also added interest to the club gatherings. Other functions included a Christmas party, gift exchange, and two bake sales.

Students in either sewing or foods who obtained "B" averages were offered membership. Of those Little Reds interested in joining, the usual initiation was required. On the appointed date, initiates attended classes dressed as housewives and had various utensils used in homemaking attached to their attire.

'Business Equals Pleasure' for Commercial Students

Composed of competent commercial students, Tridel's chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America sold United States Savings Stamps and Bonds in excess of $10,000.

Sponsored by Mrs. Mary Alice Groppe, Mrs. Opaline T. Martin, Mrs. Catherine Ebert Shields, and Miss Katherine E. Barnard, this organization celebrated its second year at the Oak Park school. Members raised funds through the sale of 340 boxes of candy.

With meetings scheduled the fourth Friday of each month, the club included in its activities a tour of Wheeling's College of Commerce and a talk on business by a professor from West Liberty State College.

Another program highlight was a film study of the stock market. Each potential business leader was assigned an investigation and report on a phase of this business. For their community-service project, members planted shrubbery under the service club welcoming sign in Elm Grove.

Krujetta Duke, Thomas Stanton, and Joy Dirbas, Savings Stamp agents, go over their records as they tabulate the highly successful sale at Triadelphia.

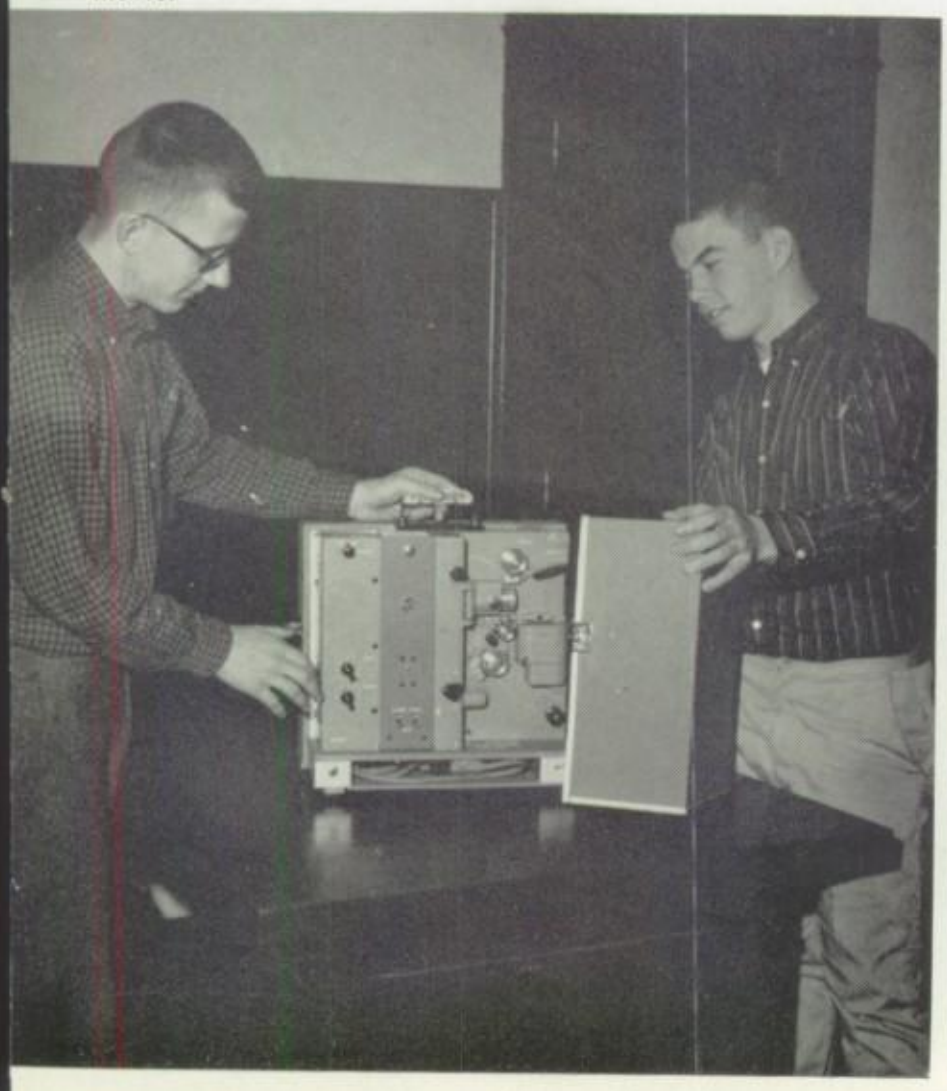
Projection Crew 'Electrifies' Little Red Productions

So that the show will go on, Fred Roscoe and David McGrail check equipment before a scheduled assembly movie.



Under the sponsorship of A. R. Milligan, Tridel's Projection Crew was composed of 18 volunteers. Each relinquished one daily study hall in order to help stage the Oak Park schedule of varied programs, ranging from assemblies to movies.

Selected by Mr. Milligan for their interest in the operation of electrical equipment, these boys lent assistance in the showing of movies in both the classroom and the auditorium. Assemblies and special programs, including rehearsals for many performances, also occupied much of the crew's time. Proper functioning of lights, sound, curtains, and scenery depended on these Little Reds, three of whom were on call each period of the day.

During the first semester, these projectionists showed a record amount of film, totaling 296,600 feet. By alternating their duties, these industrious, behind-the-scene Triads were given ample opportunity to increase their mechanical education and demonstrate their abilities as adept stage effects operators, housemen, and electricians.

Ninth - Grade Harmonizers Master Rudiments of Music

Seeking to master the rudiments of harmony, members of the First-Year Girls' Chorus met three times a week under the proficient direction of Miss Virginia L. Brand.

In addition to learning basic music principles and proper voice techniques, these ninth-grade choristers were introduced to the works of many noted composers. Such words as "allegro," "crescendo," and "fortissimo" became familiar terminology to this freshman choral group.

Ably accompanied by Jane Woodburn, the fledgling choristers first appeared before the student body in the Thanksgiving assembly, Nov. 25. Gaining stage experience, they lent fresh appeal to the annual choral Yuletide program, Dec. 10.

Highlighting the second semester, these musically minded plebes harmonized skillfully at a March assembly and executed sprightly renditions of favorite selections in the spring choral concert during both evening and assembly performances. To climax the year, they participated in the traditional Freshman Promotion Exercises in May.

Elizabeth Ann Bowers, Robin Gardner, and Lynn Gaudard, fledgling choristers, practice a selection to entertain Triads at a coming concert.

Studying the fundamentals of music, Ruth Little and Penny Clarke construct a staff and supplement it with notes for vocal routines.

Tridel's Second - Year Chorus, consisting of 30 sophomore, junior, and senior girls who had previously taken one year of vocal instruction, met three times weekly.

Attired in their traditional white blouses and dark skirts, the choristers performed four times in assembly. Under the direction of Miss Virginia L. Brand, the feminine warblers made their initial appearance in the fall. These veteran vocalists concluded the first semester's activity with a December concert and assembly of Christmas songs.

During the second term two programs were presented for Oak Park students by the chorus. For its final performance of the year this singing aggregation participated in the Spring Choral Concert, held annually for Little Red parents and friends.

At one practice session Jack Randolph, Oglebay Institute, spoke to and conducted the group. Many of the chorus members utilized their expert training by singing in church choirs and community groups.

Harmonizing Little Reds 'Scale' Musical Heights

"Look at this!" Ned Sheats shows Barbara Reith and Stuart Rubinstein, all members of the Mixed Chorus, an interesting announcement on the bulletin board in the Music Room.

Under the able direction of Miss Virginia L. Brand, the 40 voices of the Mixed Chorus blended skillfully in harmonious arrangements, ranging from sacred to popular themes.

Meeting three times weekly, these noteworthy Little Reds all had a previous year of choral work. Good measures of musical interest and ability were prerequisites for every member.

Accompanied by Eliza Rider, the tuneful Triads appeared in a Nov. 6 assembly and performed at Open House, Nov. 10. Many participated in the Oglebay Choral Clinic, Nov. 16.

Festive favorites marked the Christmas concert presented to parents and friends, Dec. 10. These were repeated for the student body, Dec. 11.

Other highlights featured visits from Jack Randolph and Miss Sarah Newport, area choir directors, and the selection of those who sang in the West Virginia State Chorus in March. Second-semester activities concluded with an appearance at Triadelphia Grade School during April and a spring concert in May.

"With a song in my heart" exemplified the enthusiasm and popularity of the Triadettes, Tridel's six most accomplished singers.

Assembling four or five mornings a week in Triadelphia's music room, these Little Reds rehearsed popular and religious selections. Under the exacting supervision of Miss Virginia L. Brand, Tridel's vocal music instructor, they were accompanied at the piano by Senior Patricia Jarvis.

Clad in jade sheaths highlighted by gold circle pins, the sextette debuted at a dinner of the Bethlehem Presbyterian Church. Other fall engagements included the Elm Grove Lions Club, Kiwanis Club, and the Classroom Teachers Association.

During the Christmas season, invitations were accepted from St. Vincent de Paul's Men's Society and the Pilot Club. These girls also sang at Triadelphia's Christmas Choral Concert and a December assembly. Spring appearances were made at the Soroptimist Club, House of Friendship, City Youth Rally at Christ Methodist Church, and the annual "Triad"-Triadelphian Variety Show.

To assure a flawless performance, Triadettes Susan Clarke and Eliza Rider practice difficult harmony with Patricia Jarvis, accompanist.

"Any demerits?" asks Band Member James Steele, pointing out his record on the recently innovated chart to Bob Burns.

With a new director and multiple changes in the types of music to which it was accustomed, the Triad Band responded favorably to an altered program. Throughout the late summer and fall, Tridel's music masters, with newly found energy, practiced varied formations and music under the baton of Peter M. Ashkine Jr., who replaced Stefano R. Ceo as director of instrumental music.

At all Little Red football games but one, spectators watched the Triadelphia High Marching Band execute precisioned drills and intricate formations. Because the Band was invited to parade in the Mountain State Forest Festival in Elkins, Oct. 3, it was unable to make the trip to the Parkersburg fray. Later in the fall, the annual Tag Day was held in Wheeling, and the donations were used to pay for equipment and other similar needs.

When the switch to concert season was made, Mr. Ashkine and the Band appeared in a Feb. 18 assembly. At the same time, the student musicians sold chocolate candy to finance a trip to see the "Ice Follies" in Pittsburgh. To round out their concert season, the Red and Black instrumentalists displayed their talents at the West Liberty State College Solo and Ensemble Contest, March 16, and at an evening performance in May.

Sherrard's Chimney Corners was the site of a Jan. 9 party that was chaperoned by Band Patrons. This event came as a belated climax to the marching season.

During the year the Band participated in several parades, including the annual procession that opened the Christmas shopping season in Wheeling. For these appearances, music such as "Peter Gunn" and the title theme from "The Man With the Golden Arm" was featured.

As their chief innovation this year, the bandsmen inaugurated a merit and demerit system, designed to inspire the instrumentalists to perfect behavior both in practice and in public.

Judy Marsh awaits her turn as Alvin Frank shines his saxophone in preparation of a coming instrumental concert.

Guided by Peter M. Ashkine Jr., director of instrumental music, Tridel's costumed majorettes appeared with the Little Red bandmen in all their performances during the marching season.

This year, Mr. Ashkine increased the number of twirlers, chosen for their ability and poise, from five to eight. Throughout the fall, the group took precision twirling lessons from a Wheeling dance studio.

Garbed in uniforms that consisted of bulky-knit sweaters, decorated boots, and short, full skirts, the Oak Park prancers worked out routines that ranged from square dances to mock bullfights. Leading the octette was Head Majorette Judy Ann Moore.

Although half of the girls were initiates to this year's twirler ranks, the other four were veteran steppers who helped the newcomers. They needed no help, however, when concert season rolled around. These Little Red maidens exchanged batons for a variety of band instruments.

Tomorrow's Voters Discuss Today's Issues in Forum Debates

Kenneth R. Cohen and Joan Gray study magazines dealing with current events in their attempts to collect convincing facts for a forthcoming Forum debate.

Consisting of 35 Oak Parkers, The Forum met monthly to discuss current issues, to form intelligent opinions, and to express and defend their views.

Each sophomore, junior, or senior desiring to belong to The Forum had to have an average of 3.5. After the initial requirements were met, prospective members wrote a paper or delivered a speech, affirmatively or negatively, on a topic designated by the Membership Committee. Affiliation was then given to those with the highest scores, the number of members being limited to 40.

Sponsored by Miss Mary A. Erskine and J. W. Cochran, the debaters heard Triadelphia's Junior Town Meeting speakers at their October meeting. Attorney E. Douglas McKay, a Republican candidate for prosecuting attorney, spoke about Wheeling's vices. During the second semester other political hopefuls appeared before the club, headed by Senior Richard Hayes.

Given the responsibility of feeding several hundred Little Reds, Mrs. Helen Marshall, Mrs. Lea Rhoades, and Mrs. Helen Corkran combined their vast knowledge of the realm of culinary arts to prepare an appetizing array of palate-tempting foods.

These zealous ladies labored five mornings each week to satisfy the demands of hungry Oak Parkers. Countless additional hours were spent planning each lunch, purchasing required ingredients, and keeping necessary financial records.

Cooks, Custodians Contribute Culinary, Cleaning Services

"Jack-of-all-trades" might well apply to any of a genial group of men known as Tridel's custodians, and the services of Joseph Organ, Carl Knaus, Charles Fry, Ellis Drugan, and Leo Elliot were always in demand.

Though these five men were constantly occupied with such duties as sweeping rooms and corridors and washing chalk boards, they always found time to assist a keyless Little Red or to nod a friendly greeting to passing Oak Parkers.

J. P. McHenry to Retire After 45 Years as Educator

To honor a veteran educator and an efficient leader, "The 1960 Triad" staff recognizes J. P. McHenry, retiring this year after 25 years as superintendent of Ohio County's public schools and a total of 45 years in the educational field.

Born in Woodlands, W. Va., Mr. McHenry received the degree of Bachelor of Science from West Virginia University in 1929 and that of Master of Education from the University of Pittsburgh in 1936. When in college he belonged to the Bryant Literary Society and Kappa Delta Pi Fraternity.

Mr. McHenry's teaching experience has included five years in the elementary field, five years of class instruction at Warwood Junior High School, and four years at Warwood High School. Before his tenure as superintendent of Ohio County's Public Schools, he headed the Richland District schools for four years and was assistant superintendent of Ohio County.

Married and the father of two sons, Mr. McHenry is a member of the Methodist Church and presently resides at 2501 Vance Avenue, Warwood. Since 1937, he has served as treasurer of the West Virginia Education Association, and he has actively participated in county, state, and national teachers' organizations. His extra-curricular activities include membership in the Rotary Club and in the American Legion.

In his quarter-century at the helm of Ohio County School administration, Mr. McHenry has championed progress, combatted countless grave problems, and directed numerous changes. With perseverance and dedication he has steadfastly maintained a rigid insistence on a high quality in Ohio County's educational standards.

Triadelphia graduates number among many thousands of students who owe a debt of gratitude to J. P. McHenry, a public servant to whom "well done" may be sincerely voiced.

Taking time out from a pigskin planning session, the brains behind Tridel's brawn—Head Coach Gene Millick, Assistant Coach John A. Shinsky, Faculty Manager of Athletics Arthur E. Triad Gridders Sport Slate of Two '59 Victories

Plagued by a horde of injuries throughout the campaign, the '59 edition of Tridel's gridiron aggregation sported a seasonal slate of two victories against eight setbacks.

Under the reins of Gene Millick, new head coach, the Little Red gridders garnered a pair of scalps in their initial three tilts and then were rudely banned from the victory column for the remainder of the season.

On the credit side of the pigskin ledger the Oak Parkers edged Central's Maroons, 13-7, Sept. 10; and nipped Magnolia's Blue Eagles, 20-13, Sept. 26. In the deficit file the Red and Black gridmen were thumped by Moundsville's Trojans, 24-14, Sept. 18; fizzled out to Parkersburg's Big Reds, 60-0, Oct 2; dropped a close one to Wellsburg's Orangemen, 14-13, Oct. 10; met defeat at the hands of Martins Ferry's Purple Riders, 42-0, Oct. 17; bowed out to Union's Ironmen, 15-0, Oct. 24; fell prey to Wheeling's Wildcats, 32-6, Oct. 30; toppled before Linsly's Cadets, 32-7, Nov. 6; and succumbed to Warwood's Vikings, 12-0, Nov. 14.

Reserve, Freshman Pigskin Squads Gain Grid Experience

Able to claim but a single scalp in their combined 10 encounters, Tridel's reserve and freshman gridiron squads found the local pigskin turfs quite disastrous throughout the '59 campaign.

Starved entirely from the victory column, the Little Red junior-varsity gridders under the helm of Coach Glenn R. Schreiber fell prey to five opponents, including Moundsville, 40-0; Tiltonsville, 32-18; Martins Ferry, 47-6; Bellaire, 12-0; St. Clairsville, 14-12. Composed largely of sophomores and juniors, this aggregation saw considerable action while gaining valuable experience for future varsity roles.

Claiming their lone victory against four setbacks, the Oak Park plebes "learned the ropes" as they practiced the basic fundamentals under the watchful eye of Coach Thomas L. Ackerman. Meeting defeat at the hands of Steubenville, 14-0; Central, 26-13; Linsly, 25-0; and Bridgeport, 7-6; the Red and Black first-year men conquered Moundsville's frosh, 39-27. Gaining special mention from Coach Ackerman as varsity material were Frank Carney, Thomas Quigley, and Albert Depto.

Varsity Hardwood Corps Conquers Nine Opponents

Performing under the reins of Coach Thomas L. Ackerman, Tridel's varsity hardwood corps emerged victorious in nine contests and bowed out to 12 court opponents during the '59-'60 floor campaign.

Composed of six seniors, five juniors, and a pair of tenth graders, this year's cage squad proved unpredictable from one game to the next, varying in style and brand of ball from "red hot" to "ice cold." Tridel's Red and Black dribblers, however, engaged in a number of close encounters, including a last-second conquest of Moundsville and closing-minute losses to Union and Parkersburg, the latter in the Oak Parkers' lone overtime.

Concluding their hoop slate, the Little Red floormen dropped a 58-57 squeaker to Moundsville's Trojans in the sectional round of the West Virginia "AAA" Basketball Tournament, March 5, at Linsly.

Comprising the usual starting line-up for the Triads were John Robinson, Larry Berman, James Brown, Dick Hess, Bill Francis, and Ray Barnhart.

Linksmen Garner Five; Diamond Aggregation Cops Six

Tridel's 1959 diamond aggregation under the reins of Coach Thomas L. Ackerman emerged victorious in six of eight encounters.

Garnering two triumphs each over Wheeling and Central, the Little Reds also conquered McKinley and Warwood. Both Oak Park defeats came at the hands of Moundsville's Section III champs.

Carl Spring and Tony Figaretti carried the burden of the pitching chores as David Jackson and James Compagnone wielded explosive bats for the Triads. Five seniors, including Spring, Compagnone, first base; Leonard Wells, pitcher; Barry Clutter, right field; and Ken Burroughs, pitcher; were the retiring lettermen.

By placing second in the Stifel Cup match, the Little Red linksmen terminated the 1959 golf campaign with five victories and four setbacks.

Conquering Bishop Donohue, Wheeling, Linsly, Weirton, and Weirton Madonna, Tridel's golfers, coached by C. C. Kraus, lost the Warwood and Central engagements and the OVAC tournament in addition to the Stifel encounter.

Jim Weishar, Mickey Donoghue, Leroy Gibson, Paul Mayer, and Mike Wallis comprised the regular five-man team. Fritz Doepken served as sixth man and alternate. Triadelphia enlisted the facilities of Wheeling Park for practice sessions and home matches.

Competing in their sophomore season as a constituent of the Steel Valley League, Tridel's varsity Track squad engaged in a number of oval battles throughout the spring campaign.

Numbered among these were five dual meets with the remaining quintet of thinclad aggregations in the SVL's southern loop: Moundsville, Martins Ferry, Linsly, Wheeling, and Steubenville. Under the helm of Head Coach John A. Shinsky and Assistant Mentor Gene Millick, the Oak Park cinder corps also participated in the Brooke County Relays, Bellaire Relays, Greater City Meet, and the West Virginia Regional and State Meets.

Heading the Red and Black attack were nine returning letter winners, including Howard Gray and Bernard Carney, seniors; James Brown, Phillip Rea, Ray Bauer, Harold Cooke, and Ray Barnhart, juniors; Glenn Berisford and Jeff Smith, sophomores.

Cheerleaders Provide 'Beat' of Spirited Enthusiasm

Eight spirited Cheerleaders—five varsity and three reserve — began an active year with the sale of "beatniks." Designed to increase enthusiasm and pep at football and basketball games, as well as to raise money for future use, the wooden noisemakers were purchased by sports-conscious Little Reds.

During the gridiron season the girls were seen in red and black pleated skirts, worn with white V-neck sweaters. On the court, the sweaters were replaced by white blouses and red vests.

Ably sponsored by Miss Phyllis A. Beneke, these Little Reds conducted pep assemblies throughout the year and in October staged a pep rally on the Oak Park campus.

To remain a member of the squad, each yell leader had to attend practice every Monday and Thursday after school and maintain an average of "B."

In recognition of their services, red chenille "T's" were presented to varsity members of the 1959-1960 squad.

Janet Lee Schmeichel and Janie Bonnesen, Cheerleaders' mascots, strike their beatniks as they promote pre-game spirit.

Before they "get into the swim" at Ritchie Pool, Cinda Roush, Margaret Thompson, and Sue Thorn assemble their equipment.

Cold weather proved no barrier to the favorite sports activity of Little Red mermaids. As members of the Girls' Swimming Club, they invaded Neptune's realm at regular intervals during the winter months.

Sponsored by Miss Ellen W. Stewart, two-hour swimming meets were held the first and third Tuesday of each month at Ritchie School. At each session a special program was arranged to further perfection in diversified aquatic skills. Among these were water ballet, diving, racing, and improvement of strokes.

Two tryouts for membership in the club were held in October. Each candidate was required to exhibit her proficiency in the side, crawl, breast, and back strokes, as well as to execute a front dive. Judged by the seasoned swimmers, the girls with the highest ratings were admitted to the organization.

Business of the club was conducted at a monthly meeting. In March a bake sale abetted the club's treasury.

Muscle-Building Maidens Enjoy Many Vigorous Sports

Muscle-building members of Tridel's Girls' Athletic Association literally "had a ball" during their '59-'60 sports season.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Ellen W. Stewart, the sports-minded Triads met the second and fourth Thursday of each month. At these gatherings the girls participated in various after-school intermural contests.

Vigorous activities began with a hike to Oglebay Park in October. During this month a picnic was also held with the Girls' Swimming Club.

Inter-scholastic competition was the keynote of the GAA's fall and winter sessions. Volleyball and basketball tournaments with such foes as Wheeling, Martins Ferry, and Bellaire highlighted the encounters. Towards the close of the winter season, the Little Reds sharpened their blades for a skating party with other athletic clubs. Spring activities included softball and soccer frays.

After the initial membership requirements of 200 points, awards consisted of an emblem for 300 points and a "T" for 500. Felt stars were awarded for each additional 100 points.

Choosing an emblem, Joyce Westlake, Lynne Clarke, and Dianna Felton, GAA members, inspect the selection offered by Miss Ellen W. Stewart.

Preparing for the annual "Triad" patrons' solicitation, Stephen G. Lowman, Marta Haake, and Eloise O'Shields, staff members, arrange fliers for mailing.

Judy Youngman, advertising manager, enters the record of payment from a Triadelphian client in her account book.

To Sharon,

although I have only known you for seven months, they have been seven of the nicest in my life. You are the most wonderful girl I know, except when you have a change of mind. Good luck in the "future".

Love always,

Duke

Sharon,

A real cute and sweet girl, who has what it takes. You make a real ~~goo~~ nice friend and I'm glad you are glad of [illegible].

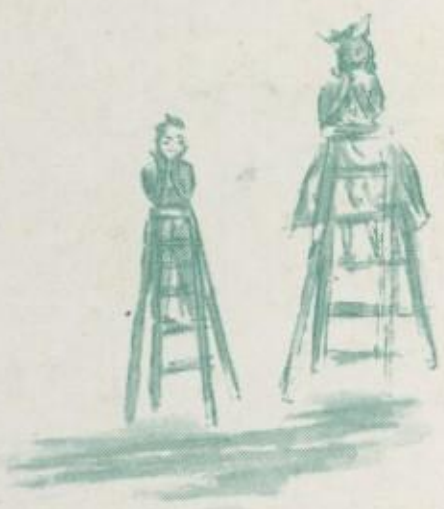
Don't forget about all the [illegible] had and will have.

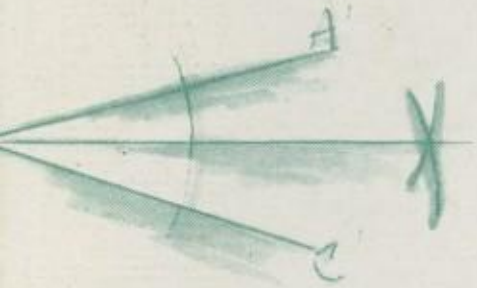
Take care of Duke, he really deserves you and you deserve him.

Remember the "nice" "quiet" parties we went to — well don't forget.

Don't forget all the fun we had with the W. A. C. gang.

Take care of yourself & Duke,

Love ya,




Carolyn
